Part 1: Parents Are Vital

By: Bryant Evans

Children are challenging in the best of times; I know, I have three. After a long day, you find a school project that is due...when else...tomorrow morning. A missed school bus means you haul them to school and are late for work. Sleepless nights become the norm once they start driving. It's hard. Sometimes you wish you could just check out for a day or two. But you cannot. Parents are vital. You are vital.

School shootings remind us how much children need us. The recent shooting in Uvalde, Texas reveals and 18 year old estranged from both parents. Shootings are the most extreme example of parental failure but they are not the only evidence that too many parents are working in absentia. School fights have grown more dangerous, involve more students, result in greater injuries, and even involve teachers and administrators. These below-the-radar events point directly to failed parenting and failed education systems. Any attempt to fix these problems which does not include parental improvement will fail.

For most youth, school is the first step into the broader society. If we fail to fix the poor parenting problem now we will all suffer later. Parents aren't the only problem but they are fundamental.

Parents Are Vital Because They Are The Best Teacher

Parents must not discount their role in the development of a child. Public school teachers are outstanding professionals trained to teach students science, technology, engineering, math, language skills, literature, and history. They are neither trained nor allowed to teach foundational morality. That task belongs to the parents. Given the importance of proper child-rearing, it is not surprising that the Bible has much to say.

Only take care, and keep your soul diligently, lest you forget the things that your eyes have seen, and lest they depart from your heart all the days of your life. Make them known to your children and your children's children...

Deuteronomy 4:9

You shall teach them diligently to your children, and shall talk of them when you sit in your house, and when you walk by the way, and when you lie down, and when you rise. You shall bind them as a sign on your hand, and they shall be as frontlets between your eyes. You shall write them on the doorposts of your house and on your gates.

Deuteronomy 6:7 – 9

And what is perhaps the best known:

Train up a child in the way he should go; even when he is old he will not depart from it.

Proverbs 22:6

Parents are the first, best models for adulthood. We learn how to be adults by watching the adults of our youth, hence the old saw, "the apple doesn't fall far from the tree." The parents and grandmother of the Uvalde shooter all had run-ins with the legal system. While there are always exceptions, children tend to mimic their parent's values, especially through their teen years.

To be continued.....

Please keep in your prayers:

Julie Doughty is having ongoing health problems (daughter of Jerry Doughty).

Remember those recovering from COVID.

Ronnie Jones is having heart valve troubles and will be further evaluated. Open heart surgery is possible (former member).
